

Through a Pane: H91X6XN–BT180AJ 3, 7, 8, 9, 12, 14, 19, 20

Greaney, A. (Photographer). (2020). Through a Pane: H91X6XN–BT180AJ 3, 7, 8, 9, 12, 14, 19, 20: 'Not Alone' Golden Thread Gallery: A Touring Exhibition For Our Strange New World: August 2020 To June 2021 . Exhibition

Link to publication record in Ulster University Research Portal

Publication Status:

Published (in print/issue): 01/08/2020

General rights

Copyright for the publications made accessible via Ulster University's Research Portal is retained by the author(s) and / or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing these publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

Take down policy

The Research Portal is Ulster University's institutional repository that provides access to Ulster's research outputs. Every effort has been made to ensure that content in the Research Portal does not infringe any person's rights, or applicable UK laws. If you discover content in the Research Portal that you believe breaches copyright or violates any law, please contact pure-support@ulster.ac.uk.

THE VISUAL ARTISTS' NEWS SHEET ONLINE

NEWS ARTICLES CRITIQUE EDITIONS PODCASTS PRINT ARCHIVE ONLINE

Home » Editions » 2020 06 November/December » Critique: 'Not Alone' Travelling Exhibition

CRITIQUE: 'NOT ALONE' TRAVELLING EXHIBITION

Home

Articles

Critique

Profiles

News

Editions

Submission Guidelines

Writers' Style Guide

What's On in Ireland

About Us

Contact Us

Legal Notices

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Cookie settings

ACCEPT

Originally conceived by Golden Thread Gallery's director, Peter Richards, and inspired by The Police song, Message in a Bottle, the exhibition 'Not Alone' uses a travelling bottle as a curatorial device to reclaim agency in the face of a precarious future as a "powerful act of defiance and optimism from the stranded." Eight local artists were asked to create an artwork with one rule – it must fit in a bottle. Packaged into said bottle, these artworks are being mailed to different curators' homes around the world. Using these various domestic settings as a site-specific stage, the works are being documented and exhibited on social media.

So far, this nomadic exhibition has been installed in the homes of curators Chiara Matteucci in Bologna and Manuela Pacella in Rome. At the time of writing, it is currently with Micol di Veroli (also in Rome) and will then travel (provisionally) to Mia Lerm Hayes in Amsterdam, Ciara Finnegan in Heemstede and Gregory McCartney in Derry until December. Its destinations are subject to the unexpected changes of the year that's in it, and it is intended to travel until June 2021. The exhibition is hybrid in form, as the work is physically mailed, installed and digitally shown – it is being privately exhibited and disseminated publicly online. The viewer's interactions with the exhibited artworks are fragmented and varied, as intended, through the curator's social media accounts and Golden Thread Gallery's website.

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Cookie settings

ACCEPT

John Rainey, To think about things that appear to be separate, 2020, parian porcelain; courtesy of the artist and Golden Thread Gallery

Manuela Pacella has embedded the artworks within the dalliness of her home. Graham Gingles' work, Glass Tower – a small glass cuboid sculpture – is contained in an emptied-out cube of her bookshelf. On the shelf next to it is the book, The Cities of Belfast by Nicholas Allen and Aaron Kelly, whose cover features a detail of a photograph from John Duncan's series, Boom Town. There is a welcomed intimacy in viewing artworks in a domestic situation (and occasionally recognising books) as I peer into her living room from about things that appear to be separate, is seen in scale next to Joy Gerard's black ink drawings of upside-down American flags, Sign of Distress Version 1 and Version 2. They complement each other both aesthetically and in terms of subject matter, with their opposing tones and references to the Black Lives Matter movement.

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Cookie settings

ACCEPT

By favouring physical objects, the participating artists have aligned themselves with the means of travel, as opposed to the mode of distribution. Only one of the eight individual works are digital; Chloe Austin's video, Kairos, has been sent on a USB drive, with a scroll-text piece to be installed alongside the video. Viewers have yet to see Austin's video itself, as both curators have only posted image stills of the video being projected and viewed on a television screen. There is a sense of immediacy in knowing that these artworks have been produced under the same restricted conditions that we are all working under. In Ailbhe Geaney's photographic series, Through a pane H91X6XN – BT180AJ 3, 7, 8, 9, 12, 14, 19, 20, it's impossible not to feel connected to the artists' family, who are trying to make the most of their quarantine at home. For this series, the artist's mother, father and sister sent photographs of themselves, taken through their kitchen window and framed by wooden panels, which they then sent to the artist, who is currently living in a different county. These photographs have been printed on acetate. One can be seen taped to Pacella's window.

As a curatorial endeavour, 'Not Alone' has gone one step further than other 'mail art' initiatives, by posting actual sculptural artworks, as opposed to 2D or text-based work.¹ However, as with many online exhibitions, there is a flattening out or equalising that takes place. In this case, each of the artworks are reduced to a poorly-lit image and limited to the 1080 x 1080 px square allowed by Instagram. This leaves a sense of removal between the works and the viewer – a feeling of not having seen the work fully. Indeed, it is early days with a project like this. One can only assume that the exhibition will become richer, the more it is installed, as the repetition and accumulation intrinsic to its travel will be interpreted and reiterated in new and unexpected ways.

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Cookie settings

ACCEPT

← Previous article
Next article →

Head Office

Windmill View House,
4 Oliver Bond Street,
Dublin 8
Tel: +353 (0)1 672 9488
Fax: +353 (0)1 672 9482
Email: info@visualartists.ie

Office Hours Dublin:

Monday - Friday 9:30am - 5:30pm

Northern Ireland Office

109 - 113 Royal Avenue
Belfast, BT1 1FF
Northern Ireland
Tel: +44 (0)28 9587 0361
Email: info@visualartists-ni.org
Privacy Statement

The Visual Artists' News Sheet

is a Visual Artists Ireland publication printed six times each year. The Visual Artists' News Sheet Online offers our readers a platform to discuss a number of the articles and topics contained in the print edition.

Members of VAI receive a copy of our print edition straight to their door, six times a year.

Find out more about joining VAI.

Visual Artists Ireland
Visual Artists Ireland [Northern Ireland]

Visual Artists Ireland is project funded by:

Visual Artists Ireland

Ealaíontóirí Radharcacha Éire

The All Ireland Representative Body for Visual Artists in All Art Forms

The Sculptors Society of Ireland t/a Visual Artists Ireland is funded by the Arts Council /An Chomhairle Ealaíon, The Arts Council of Northern Ireland, and Dublin City Council.

Registered Charity No. CHY 9629

Patron: Michael D. Higgins, PRESIDENT OF IRELAND

Visual Artists Ireland is sponsored by:

Visual Artists Ireland is core funded by:

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Cookie settings

ACCEPT

Belfast
City Council

Copyright © 2020 | MH Purity WordPress Theme by MH Themes

This website uses cookies to improve your experience. We'll assume you're ok with this, but you can opt-out if you wish.

Cookie settings

ACCEPT